9:30 a.m. – 12:20 p.m.	Part I: The periphery as an inspiration for Europe The periphery of Europe is not only a geographic category with strong sociocultural characteristics and it serves as a laboratory for all kinds of creative civil society movements: Despite all prejudices countries like Albania or Bosnia today show how religious and ethnic coexistence can work. Citizens in the Baltic countries strongly confess to their integration into European alliances by initiating creative projects. And while southeastern and southwestern countries face severe economic and structural problems, civil society organizations, artists and intellectuals tackle the crisis by implementing experimental ideas and initiatives. How can a creative spirit help to establish open and democratic relations, a true dialogue and cultural cooperation between the periphery and the rest of Europe?

1:50 – 5:00 p.m.	Part II: The City as a Spot of Innovation, inclusion and of new models for citizenship education Unemployment, perceived threats from immigration, globalization and de-estatisation, fear of social deprivation: A growing number of citizens are alienated with politics and the political elite and turn away from elections, the democratic institutions and their decision making processes. In times of growing mistrust against EU politics and success of populist political movements from right to left in European countries it's important to stimulate, include and activate civil society on the local level. Based on their European heritage, their social entrepreneurship, pragmatic approach and their creative power urban areas have an outstanding role for the European process beyond the local and regional competences.
