9:15 – 10:30 a.m.	Debate I: Arts And Culture For Europe A positive European self-confidence should be guided by its democratic achievements against the hostile, partially racist and populist movements that are increased by the "refugee crisis", but also have other causes. Arts and Culture in particular convey another visionary image of Europe that needs to be upheld against those who refuse and fight against it. Cultural activities can and must help to convey tolerance and mutual understanding in an acceptable way Video message by Martin Schulz, President of the European Parliament Controversy with György Dragoman, writer Panel discussion: Enrique Barón Crespo, Ernest van Buynder, Beral Madra, Jens Nyman Christensen, Doris Pack, Helen Sildna, Julie Ward; moderated by Farid Tabarki and Volker Hassemer
10:30 – 11:00 a.m.	Coffee Break with Tour over the Marketplace Europe
11:00 a.m. – 12:15 p.m.	Debate II: Flight and Migration: The New European Divide While the so-called "refugee crisis" continually polarises societies in the West, it unites them in the East in their rejection of Brussels' policies. The European motto "unity in diversity" is meeting with fierce resistance by right-wing populist governments, who are offering national-religious narratives instead. But what is intended by those who create a climate of fear and suspicion towards migrants and refugees? How can a new European divide along the former Iron Curtain be overcome and how can artists and cultural producers contribute to a greater European awareness? Input: Rita Süßmuth Panel discussion: Dessy Gavrilova, Aleš Šteger, Rita Süßmuth, Dejan Ubović; moderated by Gemma Pörzgen
12:15 – 12:45 a.m.	Artistic Intervention MitMachMusik
12:45 – 2:00 p.m.	Lunch Break
2:00 – 3:15 p.m.	Debate III: Starting From The Bottom-up The European project is fateful for the future of the Europeans themselves. It is "their" project; they are responsible for this project and not just its observers. Therefore, it must be about a more active European society now, it's a matter of active citizens. The impulses should come from "bottom-up". ASfE is trying to promote the general development of Europe through a bottom-up process, through the strong participation of citizens and the necessary, permanent dialogue at all political levels. Controversy: Ivan Krastev (Centre for Liberal Strategies Sofia) and Elmar Brok (MEP) Discussion: Maria Badia i Cutchet, Rumena Bužarovska, Ulrike Guérot, Arne Lietz, Lorenzo Marsili, Hannes Swoboda, Jon Worth; moderated by Farid Tabarki and Volker Hassemer
